

INDIANA AGRICULTURE COALITION FOR RURAL ENERGY (IN-ACRE)

About IN-ACRE

The Indiana Agriculture Coalition for Rural Energy (IN-ACRE) represents and supports Hoosier farmers and rural landowners who support rural energy projects and technology. The coalition promotes a rural energy agenda that prioritizes Hoosier property rights and the family farms that are the backbone of our rural economy.

Farmers across Indiana and the nation are increasingly embracing rural energy—from efficient lighting to solar panels and wind power generated from their land. These improvements can open up new income streams while improving efficiency and profitability. By informing, educating, facilitating, encouraging, and showcasing initiatives, IN-ACRE aims to empower growers, enhance rural energy efficiency, and generate new income streams.

What We Do

Inform growers about rural energy that saves money, boosts efficiency, and protects resources.

Educate communities and leaders to support rural energy.

Facilitate dialogue between growers and developers to shape fair land use and stewardship.

Encourage growers to champion rural energy and strengthen grassroots support across Indiana.

Showcase rural energy projects that drive stewardship, entrepreneurship, and community growth in Indiana.
